

Laura Green. 24 Oct^r 1839.

My dear Caroline,

I have just received a letter from M^r Mancun, containing an offer of a situation for you with an English engineer established at Aix-la-chapelle. The situation is described as most advantageous in every respect; but it is useless for me to send you the particulars, imagining you are settled with M^r Chorley. I say - imagining - because you have never wrote a word to that effect. Should you be free from engagement - moral as well as legal - for I hold both equally binding; let me know, and then I will send the particulars. Should you be fixed with M^r Chorley, write to M^r Mancun, thanking him, to that effect. He seems to imagine you are here with me. His address is N^o 25 Great Winchester Street, London.

Hindrances are in my way from being able to write more than necessary to-day. All goes on well. Remembrances to uncle and aunt.

Your affectionate father,

Chas^r Brown.

My dear Charles, ^{wishing} Carlino having ~~shown~~ me to add any thing that occurs to me while he is gone out riding a favorite pony, I will just repeat my opinion, that he is not under any moral engagement ~~to~~ remain with Chorley if you have met with any thing else which you consider it more to his advantage to accept, - provided we close the matter with him handsomely in the way Carlino has expressed - The arrangement was, that I should pay him £20. a year for instructing Carlino, by way of premium for three years, - and that if Carlino should leave him previous to the expiration of them, (the case of illness only, I should say, mentally reserved) he should forfeit £10. to him - In regard to the time of paying the £20. Chorley afterwards said to Carlino, he thought it should be paid at the intermediate time of each year, which would be at Christmas; - but I intended paying him only £10. at Xmas in order to avoid the possibility of my paying £20. for six months, and Carlino's being called on for the forfeit besides, in case of his happening to leave just or soon after Christmas - In that view of it Chorley would now be entitled to the forfeit only, the time for paying the ^{year's} premium not having arrived - But as I should not consider this any more fair, than my paying him the £20. at Christmas, I feel willing to pay him the £10. unless he should express himself satisfied with a proportionate part of it when Carlino has occasion to enquire what he considers will disengage him from the contract - Carlino seems to have given you a full account of his opportunities here, he at first observed to me, he should not like "to buy a pig in a poke"; but I replied you would of course more particularly describe the "pig" to him, as you represent it "described as most advantageous in every respect." This comes of course rather suddenly upon him when he has so lately made up his mind to remain with Chorley, but I am quite certain he is not only ^{to do so} willing, but desirous of uniting with you in any change that may be thought best adapted to his present and future interests.

Mr Charles Brewer,

117
Sandrock Cottage

Midhurst.

24
1833

Sad

I am very sorry to hear that you are ill

and hope you will soon

be better

I am sure you will

be soon

and I hope you will

be soon

and I hope you will

be soon

and I hope you will

be soon

and I hope you will

be soon

and I hope you will

be soon

and I hope you will

be soon

and I hope you will

be soon

and I hope you will

be soon

and I hope you will

be soon

and I hope you will

be soon

and I hope you will

be soon

and I hope you will

be soon

and I hope you will

be soon

and I hope you will

be soon

and I hope you will

